3. De Anza Leadership Conference- October 23 2-5pm (Info)

This is the first time ICC and DASB have ever done an event like this and we are going to be featuring some really incredible speakers!

Tamara Steele, an attorney who has also founded her own company named Evolve and has over 25 years of experience being a life coach, author, and speaker, will be covering topics on how to lead with confidence, the different types of leadership styles, how to manage conflict in teams effectively, and changes in your life that you can make to achieve your leadership goals.

Doris Pickering, who owns her own company called Silicon Valley Speaks, will be bringing her public speaking and presentation training programs to ambitious business owners and professionals who are ready to improve their public speaking skills, and now, to all students at De Anza and Foothill! She really uses these skills to help train you into building your career and reaching higher positions in your professional life.

Raj Jayadev co-founded his own nonprofit called DeBug and he teaches people about participatory defense. focuses on training people so that they can make systematic changes in the courts. His work is part of a larger effort to end incarceration. His work has been featured in the New York Times, the Atlantic, Time.com and many other media outlets. Especially with the focus on civic engagement and how important it is for our systems to change.

Everyone who attends will be entered in for a chance to win a $50 Amazon gift card & everyone will be receiving a certificate of completion

4. National Business Plan Competition (Info)

The first round session for the NBPC is this Friday! Watch and support your fellow De Anza student's business plans this Friday as they compete with other community colleges!
